

The availability of native plants varies from year to year, and from season to season within any given year. Therefore, I hesitate to provide a list, lest I get someone's hopes up only to dash them if a particular plant turns out to be unavailable. However, I think it is helpful to be able to give you at least a guide of what we most likely will have available at some time during the year, so you can think about the native plants that would be suitable to incorporate into your landscape.

Once in a while we get a surprise or two – bear grass, Indian paintbrush, western dogwood, for example.

It is always good to give us a call or stop by and take a look. And let us know what you're looking for; there are some plants we have access to but don't normally stock, so possibly available through our "wish list" program.
